Home Produced Movies and Sound Effect Presented at Ad Club

Committee of M. G. Hubbs, Dr. Stuart Bean and Glenn L. Sprague presents interesting program of colored motion pictures, slides of Addison and Addisonites of years ago—Christmas lighting workers honored. Over 100 present—First graders present program.

Advertising Club members saw and heard themselves, their friends and others in a novel program presented by members Tuesday night. In Addition some interesting colored motion pictures of interesting places and scenes were shown by Dr. Stuart H. Bean, an enthusiast. There were over 100 at the dinner when President Milton H. Crane called the group to order in the commercial room of the Addison High School. The roast pork dinner was served by the members of the Senior Class. They were assisted by their mothers. Serving was well organized and good.

The Rev. Nicholas Van Cossaboon opened themeeting with prayer and the Rev. John V. Axtell was song leader for a program of old and new songs.

After the dishes had been cleared away, President Crane paid tribute to the honored guests of the night, the men of the community who donated their time and talent in stringing the Christmas tree lights across Main street and who also took the lights down and stored them away. These men and their wives were guests of the club. They were: Mr. and Mrs. George Freeman, Mr. and Mrs. E. Dixon Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Aldrich, Mr. and Mrs. Wyckoff Sherwood. Mike Triches, Stanley Ward, James Barkalow, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mullen, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Dykins and Mr. and Mrs. John Davis.

Others who worked on the lights but were unable to be present were Ted Laffkas, Walter McDermott, John Sanford, Lewis Manley L. E. Handy Fay Brown, and John Bullock. The guests were given a vote of thanks by the members.

The next meeting will be Wednesday, May 8, with S. C. Erwin in charge.

President Crane asked the members of the Sales Day Committee to make a report on plans at the next meeting. Mr. Crane also extended a welcome to the ladies.

He then announced the committee in charge of the evening's program as M. G. Hubbs, Dr. Stuart H. Bean and Glenn L. Sprague. The program opened with the voice of Mr. Hubbs coming from a prepared record. He welcomed the guests and announced the evening's program by means of this recording device. He announced Mr. Sprague as master-of-ceremonies for the night, Dr. Bean as the projectionist and Harry Mullen as narrator.

Mr. Sprague first introduced the members of a first grade group of Miss Florence Edwards in songs and dances. Their first number was "The Shoemaker Song" an action number, the boys then presented "I'd like to be a cowboy" and the girls sang a safety song, "I've Lost My Way" in which young people are asked to remember their name, address and phone number in case they get lost. Another action song "I Wish I Had A Tiny Fiddle" closed the group singing. Bobby Hurtz then told "A Fish Story" and the group performed an action dance with vocal accompaniment.

The youngsters in the first grade who took part in the songs and dance were Stuart Bean, Bobby Hurt. Johnny Morris, Marcia Strait, Norma Stewart, Jean Merrill Janet Callahan, Richard Lewis.

The musical numbers played were a piano solo, "Etude in D Flat" of Liszt played by Miss Janet Taylor, a soprano solo, "Last Hour" of Walter Kramer, sung by Mrs. Glenn L. Sprague, accompanied by Miss Taylor. She then sang "Dry Those Tears", by Del Riego, with accompaniment by Mr. Sprague on the violin and Miss Taylor at the piano. This was recorded on a record and played back immediately to the audience and Mrs. Sprague.

The motion pictures shown were those of Cornell-Penn State and Penn State-Bucknell football games scenes in New York, sunsets in and around Addison, viwes of Addison, Keuka Lake and pictures taken at the Advertising Club picnic at Judge Edwin C. Smith's camp last summer. Mr. Mullen made comments on the passing scenes and Miss Taylor played appropriate music.

At the conclusion of the pictures Dr. Bean was given a vote of thanks. Mr. Hubbs then called upon Ray Brown, Harry Mullen, Louise Harrison, Robert Willson and the Rev. Nicholas Van Cossaboon. Each drew a topic and without any preliminary preparation had to speak one minute. This was recorded and then played back from the record to the audience. This created many laughs.

Lake Shore Wreck At Little Falls Renews Memories

The wreck of the speeding Lake Shore Limited in the Mohawk Valley late last Friday night has revived memories of other famous wrecks throughout the country. In the news dispatches of the wreck, mention was made of the wreck on that same corner 30 years ago when a speeding train, bearing Sunday papers to the Mohawk Valley turned over on the same corner.

The curve, a six per cent curve with a hill in the vicinity has a speed limit of 45 miles per hour for locomotives. Warning signs are posted so that engineers are to proceed with caution on the curve. The Lake Shore Limited, in which 31 persons met death, was traveling 59 when wrecked.

This speed limit was set owing to a wreck there 30 years ago when three cars turned over and an engine crew was killed. No passengers were killed at that time owing to the newspapers acting as cushions for the cars as they fell, for the first car emptied its load along the highway and tracks for half a mile.

The writer is a former newspaper writer of the Mohawk Valley and in his collection of newspaper material is an original cut of that wreck, saved through the years and now presented exclusively in this paper. The Mohawk River may easily be identified in the left of the picture and the rocks which tore the Lake Shore Limited and ripped steel cars like sardine cans. Then as now communication lines adjacent to the track were torn by the wreck and the four main line tracks of the New York Central were blocked.

Turn Clocks Ahead Sunday

Daylight saving will begin in most communities throughout New York State Sunday morning at 2 A. M. However, for protection and so you won't forget, turn your clock ahead Saturday night before you go to bed.

Through daylight saving there will be an hour longer of daylight time during the summer months in the evening, taking the hour from the morning time. After one gets used to it, there will not be too many complications, providing all communities and utilities use it.

It is expected there will be revisions of railroad and bus schedules to meet the change.

Young people will take advantage of the period Saturday night and probably stay out an hour longer than is their usual want, so they really will not gain the hour of sleep which should come to most of us Saturday night.

Church services will be on daylight saving time.

The first name chosen, "Daisy's Dump" was used during the opening week and attracted considerable attention. However, Mrs. Strait wishes it known that that name was not chosen to offend or belittle anyone or anything but merely as a catch name until the permanent name should be chosen. So hereafter the businetss will be known as Daisy's Lunch. As was stated before the feature items on the menu will be spaghetti and Texas hots in addition to regular dinner and short order meals.

Hi-Lights and Shadows of the Week's News

The War

War news from the various fronts in Europe these days is a complicated maze of claims and counterclaims which leave the casual newspaper reader in a dizzy whirl of confusion. Conquests in the air and on water usually must submit to a division of three or four from the victor's announced gains to approach the truth. Land action on the new Scandinavian fronts need to be considered not so much for day-to-day gains as for their long range effect on the campaign.

During the past week German claims of reinforcements pouring into Norway are partly borne out by fact. Some 200 transport planes have been carrying Nazi troops in 20-man batches across from Denmark, at the rate of some 2,000 a day. A few more trickle in by sea. The German invaders at the beginning of the week numbered between 70 and 85 thousand men, the main body of troops being in the Oslo area. Strong garrisons were also at Trondheim, Stavanger and Bergen.

British silence concerning expeditionary forces was broken at the end of last week with announcement three divisions had been safely landed in Norway—two British and one French. Namsos and Andalsnes were the fjords which offered entry for allied troops, the former about 90 miles north and the latter some 100 miles south of Trondheim which became the first objective of Nazi held Norwegian soil.

Hitler's probable objectives in invading Norway were to impress Italy by another blitlkreig, to forestall Stalin from seizing the northern Atlantic coast, to obtain submarine bases and air bases on the Atlantic close to the British coast thus breaking the blockade. To accomplish these he was willing to lose about one-third of his fleet of surface vessels. Having taken Oslo, Bergen, Tronheim, Stavanger and Narvik he needed to consolidate his forces by joining them along the routes of railroads which connect the first four named cities. Narvik could only be reached by sea.

To combat Hitler the British needed to smash his battle fleet and cripple his sea troop transport, land forces of their own to fight and bolster the scattered Norwegian army. Narvik was the first objective and the Nazis there were immediately cut off by blockade of the port and

OUR OWN ROLE

Bit by bit the inside story of the German invasion of Norway has been pieced together into a theme of treachery almost unparalleled in the history of the world. German spies had a large hand in the sudden seizure of Olso, but treason on the part of Norwegian army officers was the largest contributing factor in the occupation of the strongly fortified Norwegian harbor by a force which could never have succeeded against determined resistance.

Indeed, so close did the venture come to failure in its initial stage a single shot almost overturned the Nazi plans, according to Edmund Stevens, a correspondend for the Christian Science Monitor who was in Norway last week. A group of Nazi spies and sympathizers awaited the arrival of a German battleship early in the day of the coup, but the Blucher never reached Olso for the reason some gunners in Oscarborg fired upon the vessel and sank it with nearly all of the 1,500 men on board. There were only six rounds of ammunition left in the fort at the time and the Nazis steamed in front of its guns believing they were spiked by sabotuers.

The same correspondent tells how a Norwegian airport was taken by a handful of Germans when officers told their men it was useless to fight (although a mere handful of Germans opposed them). One strong Norwegian fortress manned by 1,300 troops was taken by a force of 500 Germans when the commanding officers surrendered. A detachment of 3,000 Norwegian soldiers was commanded by officers to lay down their arms to a Nazi group of 300. And so the story continues with case after case of treason among the Norwegian officers.

Throughout his rise to power Hitler has succeeded time after time in accomplishing his ends by tricks which were aided and abetted by spies and traitors operating for him in the small countries he had infiltrated with Nazi doctrines. Always when he has entered a new area by treachery and ruse he has been able to consolidate his gains because of the demoralization of the people conquered. This may be true in Norway also, as far as the Norwegians are concerned, but in moving North the German Dictator has invited the Allies to give him battle on a front which is not closed by permanent fortifications. If the British and French move into Norway quickly enough themselves that country may become the main theatre of a war which two weeks ago neutrals were calling a "phony".

Meanwhile there is a deep lesson for all neutrals to learn from the Nazi attack upon Norway. The lesson of perpetual distrust of all who may be spreading the doctrines of Nazism or Communism. In spite of the alarmist stories of all who say we have a part to play in this war to save the world for Democracy, we need have no fears of a real invasion from any land separated from us by the broad ocean. But we do have reason to protect ourselves from the infiltration of doctrines that advocate any change in our American system, doctrines we know have been sown here quite extensively the last half dozen years.

With idleness and forced unemployment so prevalent through the continued depression millions of minds make fertile soil for these doctrines to take root. Most Americans are in favor of an adequately strong navy and air forces sufficient to protect us more from the threat of invasion, rather than any real danger which can exist in that quarter. But the greatest defense we could erect against the danger of infiltration is to put our own economic house in order so that every man who wants to work can find a job.

Certainly if we can keep the hot heads in Washington from making any commitments which would involve us in this European war we need have no fear of armed invasion by any force outside our borders. There are only three countries which could conceivably be regarded as possible invaders: Germany, Russia and Japan. Japan is exhausted both physically and economically trying to conquer China, and as for the other two they have no navies which could by any stretch of the imagination bring an invading force to our shores.

We may be deeply sympathetic to the Scandinavians as we were to the Finns when invaded by Russia; we may be outraged by the Dictators' unprovoked aggression against small states. but that does not constitute a reason for us getting mixed in European quarrels. We can best serve our own people and the entire world when the war ends, by putting our own country back on its economic feet. America tried to save the world for Democracy by mixing in its quarrels once and failed, perhaps we can save the world from its annimosities by rebuilding our own Democracy here.

SHIP OF STATE SUFFERS BARRATRY

Speaking over the radio recently, Congressman Emanuel Celler made this observation on today's fiscal problems: "Business may be able to adjust itself to the present staggering tax burden, but it cannot adjust itself to the suspense, uncertainty and confusion caused by constantly changing tax laws. Without confidence, dollars will not go to work and employment can be created only by forced and artificial means"

If Congress really wishes orderly and sustained economic recovery, the first step must be to prepare a rational and permanent policy for, first, gradually reducing the debt, and, second, looking to casement of the tax load at the earliest possible future time. It should immediately repeal those "nuisance" taxes which actually reduce revenue by stunting the growth of industry and business. Business is eager to adjust itself to any necessary, equitable tax policy—but it cannot chart a safe course today any more than could a ship if known navigation marks were being constantly and carelessly changed.

ANOTHER LINCOLN NEEDED

"In the crisis of 1940 we should choose as our leader a humble man and kindly, purged of all vanity. We do not see him now. Who saw Washington months before Bunker Hill? Who saw Lincoln on his sixty-first birthday in 1860? Free men have always found their statesman. Under the stress of these times our deeply kind leader shall rise, wise with the love of the people. Then we shall cry out again, 'we are coming, Father Abraham, a million strong!"

In these words, William Allen White, noted Emporia, Kans., editor, called upon a vast audience at a Lincoln Birthday celebration to come to the rescue of the 10,000,000 unemployed.

He abandoned all partisanship in his address and warned his listeners that the problem of unemployment was never more menacing to the Nation than was that of salvery when Lincoln was chosen President.

The audience responded when he said:

"How startling is the parallel of our crisis today; 3,000,000 slaves in 1861; 10,000,000 idle men today, 10,000,000 dependent upon the whim of government for their food and shelter. These 10,000,000 are chained to public work which they must take or starve, as the slaves were in bondage to their masters. The unemployed today find their political rights menaced by party machines.

"Their freedom is lariated to economic circumstances out of their control, no less terrible because they are cushioned by our national kindness, our love of mercy, our yearning for justice.

"The unemployed worker on made-work has little free will as a man socially, as a man politically, as an economic individual. His initiative is gone.

"I feel that 10,000,000 jobless men in our land today present a problem no less menacing than was the problem of 3,000,000 slaves. For ten long years this tragic situation has stood before us challenging our best thoughts. The decade of the 1850's with its slave politics and the decade of the 1930's with its problems of unemployment, present similar, almost parallel, issues in our history".

"That Lincoln in 1861 saw life in his country as "we must see it now" was Mr. White's analysis, "for our sympathies are shaken as his were, by those in distress". But just as Lincoln, Mr. White added, we must find solutions under the Constitution and within the scope of the Declaration of Independence—a difficult task, since "the Constitution itself cannot survive where human rights are ignored".

He declared "it is as true today as when Lincoln said it, that this Nation cannot long survive half slave and half free, and there are a third, we may hope only a fourth, of our population, standing in places of danger, restricted in their opportunities as American citizens, and they cannot be blamed if they cry to us: 'Hurry; be up and doing'."

The thing for America to realize, said Mr. White, is this: "When these idle workers get steady jobs that will make them middle class consumers, then most of the ills of our social and economic body will be cured".

The commonly heard statement that unemployment will end "if we unchain business" Mr. White regarded as too optimistic and declared "today certain industries are unchained but technical improvements have reduced, not increased, the number of men employed, compared with 1929. In other industries production is at its peak; but fewer men are employed than ten years ago".

"The unemployed", he said "are not looking for work because unemployment is the product of depression, but because unemployment is the product of our very enterprise, our business, our economic organization". He added, "we cannot be too rigid in our constitutionalism nor too mushy in our sympathies if this economic riddle is solved . . . other nations have tried the hasty way of solution and have produced the totalitarian horrors of Stalin and Hitler.

"That is not the way. In the end we must solve it by seeing Lincoln's vision, a balance between the aspiration of our immortal declaration of human rights and the unshaken loyalty to our Constitution".

A FAIR PRICE FOR MILK

According tc Dr. Carl E. Ladd, Dean of the New York State College of Agriculture, a fair price for milk is more effective than any other one factor in keeping people on the land, maintaining the fertility of the soil, allowing rural children to attend high school and college, and in maintaining the general welfare and happiness of the rural village and farm.

WASHINGTON NEWS

The 49th annual congress of the D. A. R. in Washington has come and gone, accompanied by the usual display of patriotic splendor and pageantry. Several problems of vital importance to the national welfare were considered and recommendations adopted. It is hoped that the members will not feel their work is complete by the passage of a resolution in Washington, continued vigilance and activity in their respective communities is necessary. At a time when so many forces are at work which will eventually destroy the American heritage, it is heartening to observe the activities of this militant organization which is so thoroughly imbued with the philosophy of the American constitutional democracy.

One of the most notable accomplishments of this session of the Congress was the passage this week by the House of the Walter-Logan measure which would permit an interested citizen to go into Court to test the validity and legality of a departmental regulation, ruling or edict. In the past, government bureaus have been more or less immune from any attack on their rulings which has to a large degree caused them to become autocratic and unreasonable. In spite of the strenuous opposition of Administration leaders, the measure was adopted by a vote of 3 to 1. It still has to be passed by the Senate but the impressive vote it received in the House should be a warning to that august body that the people are becoming aroused against the expanding growth of regimentation of governmental bureaucracy. Will the President veto it?

Each year during the month of April Washington is the mecca for thousands of tourists and school children who come to view the seat of their national government and the opening blooms of spring. The fame of the cherry blossoms along the Tidal Basin is world-wide. This year has brought disappointment to most visitors. For the past two weeks the weather has been cold damp and dreary, the cherry blossoms lack their usual splendor, trees are still barren of leaves and the only reminder that spring has come is the fresh greenness of the grass.

The President has vetoed H. R. 6724 which was a measure to deport alien spies, saboteurs, narcotic peddlers and addicts. The reason given for the veto is that the provision for narcotic addicts was too harsh and that the provisions relating to alien spies and saboteurs was superfluous in that ample authority is found in existing law for the deportation of aliens convicted of such crimes.

Due for consideration by the House in the coming week is H. R. 9195 favorably reported by the House Committee on Labor and which amends the present National Labor Relations Act. Supporting the amendment proposed by the Committee is the American Federation of Labor; opposed is the C. I. O. While the amendments are not as drastic as those recommended by the special committee investigating the NLRB it is believed that they will serve to clarify in some degree the present conditions relating to administration of the Labor Act. Briefly, the bill enlarges the NLRB from three to five members, permits the designation of a craft as a unit appropriate for collective bargaining, provides for the determination by the Board, upon request of an employer, of the representative of employees when two or more persons each claim to represent a majority of the employees, and provides that contracts entered into between employers and employees shall continue in effect for one year.

The cash and carry provision in our neutrality law is beginning to react on our export trade, particularly with respect to farm products and many manufactured articles for the reason that the limited supply of American dollars is being used only for the purchase of vital war materials. The only dollars available for spending in the United States by England for other than war materials will be those realized from the sale here of English goods and services. With a war going on, England will be loath to use merchant ships to transport merchandise when they are needed to transport munitions of war.

ASK The Scientist

If you have a question to ask the scientist, mail it to the New York Press Association, The Castle, Syracuse, N. Y. Each week the Science Board of Syracuse University's Radio Workshop will answer those questions considered most interesting and timely.

QUESTION. Does mental effort require as much energy as physical effort?

ANSWER. If a person can remain completely relaxed while engaged in mental effort, he requires far less energy for such work than he would for physical effort. Mental effort, however, is ordinarily accompanied by a great deal of muscular tension. This is especially true when a person is doing things that require much concentration.

One can demonstrate the muscular tension which often accompanies mental effort by adding a column of figures very rapidly and noticing how tense his muscles become. The muscles under these conditions are expending a great deal more energy than the nervous system is using for the mental process.

The more a person can relax for a mental effort the less energy will be expended and the longer he can work before becoming fatigued. Men such as the late Thomas Edison who was famous for his ability to work an unusually large number of hours in a day apparently learn to relax under mental effort. A person uses more energy when he works hard physically than when he work hard mentally.—Dr. Verlus Lindeman, physiologist.

QUESTION. What was the origin of Lake Iroquois, the great body of water which once covered much of Central New York? What was its elevation and where were its shorelines? Why did the lake retreat?

ANSWER. Lake Iroquois might be thought of as the predecessor or ancestor of the present Lake Ontario. It was formed at the end of the great Ice Age which was the geologic period just preceding the present.

When the ice was slowly moving back across New York State, it stayed over the St. Lawrence valley for a great many years, thus blocking the outlet of the waters from the Lake Ontario basin and raising the level to a much greater extent than that of the present Lake Ontario. Although the lake stood at several levels during its slow recession, it was 300 feet or more above the present Lake Ontario level.

Lake Iroquois shorelines thus extended around the three flanks of the Adirondacks, roughly, north, south and west; and west across New York State along the northern edge of the Alleghany plateau, that is, that range of hills which runs across the state from east to west. If you could go to the western entrance of the Syracuse university stadium, you would be standing on what was approximately the ancient beach of Lake Iroquois.

The lake finally receded slowly, the water level dropping as the ice slowly melter back and uncovered the St. Lawrence basin, thus permitting the waters of Lake Ontario to flow out through their present channel, the St. Lawrence river.—Dr. Sidman Poole, geographer.

QUESTION. May cold water from a kitchen faucet be put safely into an automobile battery or should one use distilled water?

ANSWER. It is common practice to use tap water in the storage batteries of automobiles when the inorganic salt content of tap water is low. Use of tap water that has high salt content is not recommended. Melted snow would be all right to use because snow has very low inorganic salt content.—Dr. Albert L. Elder, chemist.

QUESTION. If horses are colorblind, how is it that horses on milk wagons seem to know to stop on a red traffic signal and go on the green?

ANSWER. Only men, monkeys and possibly rats see colors so far as we know. Other animals may distinguish colors by detecting differences in densities of light, by seeing different shades of gray.

Assuming that it is true that milk wagon horses behave as described in the question, the animal's behavior may be explained either on the basis of the position of the light or by different densities of the light.

destroying the German warships stationed there. Land forces held out but were soon encircled by British marines and Norse fighters, many being volunteer forces with hunting rifles. Second objective was to keep bombing squadrons repeatedly raining missiles on the coastal Norse airport held by Nazis; Stavanger and Trondheim so the Germans could not organize air raids against British troop transports. Third, press by land in a pincers movement against Trondheim. Fourth delay the German advance northward from Oslo. Fifth and sixth, capture Stavanger and Bergen.

Germans had to their advantage possession of all the major plane landing fields in the country. A large airport in nearby Denmark. To their disadvantage is the need of transporting the vast amount of equipment necessary for maintaining air fields, by plane into the country.

The British had no landing fields in the country at the beginning of the campaign, but did have plane carriers offshore to supply the air arm auxiliary to their land forces. Once in possession of a major airport they would have a huge advantage in the air by virtue of their sea bottoms to transport gas, oil and plane parts. They have the great advantage of operating in a friendly country where gains can be consolidated and held by Norse troops and volunteers.

Wednesday the Allies engaged the Nazis on three fronts in Norway. British warships and troops were besieging Narvik and intermittently shelling the Germans. Allied and Norse troops were attempting an encircling movement around Tronheim and more troops from Britain and France were fighting to hold back the invaders on the Hamar-Elverum front.

Concentration of German troop ships along the Swedish coast led to grave fears Hitler might invade the second Scandinavian country. Swedish defenders shot down a German plane, and forced two others into forced landings. Swedish papers claimed the Germans were photographing fortifications. A Nazi invasion was hinted by the Berlin press Tuesday when Swedish papers were warned not to print atrocity stories about German troops on threat of "dangerous consequences."

New taxes will burden the people of Britain as the government is appropriating some eight billion dollars for prosecution of the war. Half the entire budget of $2,667,000,000 pounds will be borrowed but the per capita cost of war plus ordinary expenses will total $230 for every man, woman and child in the country.

Sen. Guffey was assured the Democratic nomination for re-election over his opponent Walter Jones in the Pennsylvania primaries Tuesday. Both Guffey and Jones avowed allegiance to the New Deal. Jay Cooke took the Republican nomination by a wide margin. President Roosevelt's name was the only one entered in the presidential column, primary results not being binding on delegates from the state.

Francis "Barn" Hill came into the office Thursday morning, raging, fuming, stomping and whatever else a man does when provoked. He had a copy of the Hornell Tribune in his hand and said he was going to protest a caption under a picture of a burning ship, on the front page. The caption read, "Englishmen in the foreground are watching the British passenger steamer Barn Hill burning British said Barn Hill was not armed and not a convoy. "Barn" Hill feels this is using his name in a big way.

Serving 161 boys and men is not the easiest job in the world, and it is tough on the feet as Virginia Wheeler found out at the Father and Son banquet last Wednesday night. And so, when it came time to clean off the dishes, Virginia shed her shoes and went about in her stocking feet and I'll bet she was comfortable and the envy of those with less nerve.

Last week I mentioned the fact that we are not as friendly in Addison as small-towners are supposed to be. And the thought struck me after reading Joseph Mathews' poem that if every person in Addison spoke and smiled to everyone they meet there would be a much more friendly feeling in the town and a smile would go a long way to make everyone feel better. The inspiration for the above was provided by Mathews' lines as follows:

"If Neighbor spake to neighbor
As love demands of all,
The rust would eat the sabre.
The spear stay on the wall;
Then every day would glisten
And every eye would shine
And God would pause to listen
And life would be divine."

Grangers of Whitesville held a social hour program last week in which the question "Will the radio ever take the place of the newspaper?", was debated by a group of members. And much to the credit of the Grangers be it said that they voted that " in their opinion they preferred the newspaper to the radio if but one were to be had." Newspaper writers should give a rising vote of thanks to the Whitesville Grangers.

Someone asked the question: "Why are there so many ugly mugs when, according to the advertisements, 'It's so simple to be beautiful?"

It happened the other day at the luncheon meeting of a service club in a nearby community.

Several guests were present and they rose to introduce themselves and to give their occupation. The first man gave his name and said he was an insurance dealer. The second man arose and he, too, was an insurance agent. The third man gave his occupation as life insurance.

The next guest was a priest. With a twinkle in his eye, he spoke his name and followed it up with" occupation, fire insurance".

Dix Curtis and Lat Brewster went autoing on a beautiful April day. And before they returned they had shoveled the car out of a snow drift on Goodhue Hill not five miles from town. Yes sir, Sunday's snow storm raised cain on the hills in this vicinity.

Well, Folks, you should have seen the motion pictures at the Ad Club Tuesday night. Many of our prominent business men and housewives were seen in uncoventional poses. Their pictures were taken when they little realized it. And they sure were interesting.

And starting off with that word "well" reminds me that I find myself using that word often in conversation. Every once in awhile I find myself using some word frequently and then begins some habit breaking. I guess everyone has some pet words or phrases which roll easily from their tongue and of which they are unconscious.

Water Contaminated

J. B. M., writes: "My dug well became contaminated from a broken waste pipe leading from the house to the cess pool. The source of contamination has now been removed, but I would like to know how the well can be purified to make the water fit for drinking."

Professor C. N. Turner of the agricultural engineering department replies: "We have a recommendation for this. Of course it is possible that the water supply might be contaminated direct from the cess pool even though the waste pipe connection is water tight.

"To purify the water, the usual procedure is to dump one or two cans of chloride of lime, obtainable at a drug store. The lime should be thoroughly stirred and mixed in the water in the well and then the well should be completely pumped out. It is a good idea then to flush the walls of the well with a chloride of lime solution before the well fills again. a second thorough pumping of the water from the well might be required to get satisfactory purification.

After this it is advisable to have a bacterial analysis of the well water to determine its safety. If the supply still shows contamination, repeat the process. Then, if there is no improvement, it is possible that the contamination is coming from some other sourse."

Crickets in Cellar

Mrs. L. H. M., asks: "What can I do to rid my cellar of crickets? The noise at night is terrible."

Professor R. N. Leiby of the entomology department answers: "We have sent you a leaflet which describes the use of a poison bait. Crickets can also be killed if you can locate and spray their bodies or their haunts with a strong Pyrethrum spray".

The planned baseball game of Corning Northside scheduled for today with the Addison Knights has been postponed owing to a wet and muddy diamond. The officials of the two schools were in communication Tuesday and decided to call the game off. The inclement weather has kept both teams from batting and infield practice owing to wet and muddy grounds.

Feed and Crop Loan Officials In Bath Mon.

Emergency crop and feed loans for 1940 are now available to farmers in all areas as part of the regular program of the Farm Credit Administration to enable farmers to file their applications early and arrange their 1940 program. Checks will be issued on approved applications when funds are required.

C. Bert Smith, Field Supervisor for the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Section of the Farm Credit Administration will take applications at the Post Office in Bath on Monday, April 29.

These loans will be made, as in the past, only to farmers whose cash requirements are small and who cannot obtain a loan from any other source, including production credit associations, banks, or other private concerns or individuals.

As in former years, the money loaned will be limited to the applicant's necessary cash needs in preparing and cultivating his 1940 crops or in purchasing or producing feed for his livestock.

Borrowers who obtain loans for the production of cash crops are required to give as security a first lien on the crop financed or, in the case of loans for the purchase or production of feed for livestock, a first lien on the livestock to be fed.

Mrs. Charles Button, 66, died Thursday, April 18, 1940 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Floyd Kittell, Colwell street. She had been seriously ill for the past two weeks of pleurisy and asthma. Mrs. Button had been in ill health since last November.

She was born in Whitesville, Pa., a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Hamilton Warner on December 15, 1873. Her early education was received in the schools of Whitesville. It was there she became the bride of DeWitte Lowe of Reading Center, N. Y. on November 10, 1888. The young couple went to Detroit, Mich., where they engaged in farming. Mr. Lowe died November 27, 1921 in a motor car accident at Curtis Station, near Bath.

Mrs. Lowe then became the bride of Charles Button in Niles Valley, Pa., on May 15, 1927. He died one year later, April 14, 1928. Since that time she has done practical nursing and made her home with her daughter with whom she was staying at the time of her death.

Mrs. Button was well known thruout this vicinity and had made many friends here, friends who grieve at her passing and sympathize with the members of the family in their bereavement.

The survivors are: a brother, William Warner in Coudersport, Pa.; three daughters, Mrs. Clara Tallman of Deford, Mich., Mrs. Helen Wyble of Jackson, Mich., and Mrs. Kittel of this village; two sons William and John Lowe, both of Addison. She also leaves ten grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon with the Rev. Mondula C. Johns of the Baptist Church officiating. Burial was in Addison Rural Cemetery.

Bearers were: Floyd Kittell, Harry Cook and Clarence Kelly of Addison, Raymond Wyble and Chauncey Tallman of Michigan and Lorraine Heater.

Dairy Producers Warned Against Price Cutting

Syracuse — Warning to all dairymen in the New York milk shed against being duped by appeals from some New York City milk dealers that a voluntary price schedule be substituted for the prices contained in the Federal State Milk Marketing Agreement was sounded here today by Charles H. Baldwin, Executive Secretary of the Metropolitan Cooperative Milk Producers Bargaining Agency. Mr. Baldwin called attestion to the fact that the Order has brought stability to milk prices and has increased dairy income to a new ten year high.

"By a strange coincidence" he said, "the dealers' scheme comes to light at the time when announcement of an overwhelming vote of approval given by the dairymen to the revised milk marketing order in the six state referendum which ended April 15 is expected. It comes also on the heels of an announcement by Administrator Harmon of a $1.92 uniform price for March milk, which is 57c per cwt. higher than the price for the same month a year ago and the highest March price since 1931.

"Dairymen realize the many benefits they have received under the order" Mr. Baldwin declared, "and desire to improve the order so as to receive even greater advantages. The Bargaining Agency has already started a movement to further strengthen it again by preparing a petition for an amendment to place a 'base' or 'floor' under milk prices during August, September and October. This action has been endorsed by numerous independent groups. Such action shows the unity among producers and the desire for orderly marketing under the law.

"When Bargaining Agency delegates voted approval of the revised order at the recent Syracuse meeting", he continued, "they also adopted resolutions recommending that the Board of Directors take immediate steps to remedy what the dairymen considered an oversight in the order in regard to prices for these three months. As the agreement now stands, there is a "floor" for $2.45 established up to August 1, 1940, with $2.65 set as a minimum for November and December. Producers were unanimous in the belief that they should be protected against any possible slump in butter prices during the late summer and early fall. Preliminary steps have already been taken by the Agency toward petitioning the state and federal governments to make this change in the order.

"All right thinking dairymen will immediately recognize any suggestion from the metropolitan dealers for exactly what it is—a trick to create dissatisfaction in the ranks of the producers and a clumsy effort to undermine confidence in the milk order itself. They seek to create the impression that, were it not for the order, the dealers would be paying higher prices than the agreement specifies.

"The prices which they suggest under their 'voluntary agreement' are, of course, based upon thin air and nothing more. Dairy farmers have, in the past, been fooled by suggestions of voluntary increases to be given by the group of dealers and producers know that no voluntary agreement of milk dealers to increase producer prices has worked. The reason for farmers going into this order is that they recognize complete failure of voluntary agreement.

"On the other hand, the present market agreement provides all these guarantees with both state and federal officials at all times ready to see that it is enforced in every particular.

"The almost unanimous vote approving the agreement on the part of milk producers as a whole was a bitter disappointment to some dealers. They thrive on discord and unrest among dairymen. That means lower prices. They dislike to see unity and harmony among dairymen because that means powerful, almost irresistible effort, which results in higher prices as the record shows."

George Andrus was in Canisteo Tuesday.

April Showers May Provide May Flowers

Friday dawned clear and rather cold: It looked much like rain. Friday afternoon the sun shone for awhile making all feel that spring really was in the air and that warm weather was here to stay. Then came the rains, cold and Sunday and Monday snow, giving us winter all over again. Furnaces roared over the week-end as in mid-winter, despite the fact it is nearly the end of April. Fickle weather has cost man a great deal in extra coal, in lack of work for the farmers who desire to plow and plant. Many cannot remember such an April, in fact such a winter as has struck the southern tier during the past year.

Children's Crusade Begins In Schools Throughout Nation

More than 130,000 one and two-room schools from Maine to California, 50,000 three to five-room schools, and hundreds of consolidated country schools this week began their activities in connection with the Crusade which culminates in the classrooms of the United States beginning Monday, April 22 and extending through Tuesday, April 30. The announcement of participation in this nation-wide movement by American elementary and high school pupils was issued this week by Dorothy Canfield Fisher of Arlington, Vermont, Chairman of the Crusade, and one of America's outstanding novelists.

The Children's Crusade for Children is being sponsored by leaders of farm organizations throughout the country. These farm leaders include Mrs. H. W. Ahart, President of the Associated Women of the American Farm Bureau Federation, Mrs. Gladys Talbott, Director of the Junior Department of the Farmers Education and Cooperative Union, and L. J. Taber, Master of the National Grange.

The two-fold aim of the Children's Crusade, according to Crusade headquarters located in the Empire State Building, New York City, is: "First, to help the homeless and orphaned children of war-stricken lands in their growing, tragic need; second, through understanding the plight of these children, to dramatize for our American children the blessings of American institutions and ideals, too often taken for granted by adults as well as children, free speech, free education, free assembly and freedom of conscience".

The school boys and and girls of the village of Perkinsville, Vermont, started the children's Crusade of 1940, Mrs. Fisher relates. Distressed by the plight of the children abroad, these youngsters saved their pennies and dispatched the sum of $5.69 to Mrs. Fisher, asking her to use their pennies to help the children without a country. "We are not rich", said the delegation of youngsters that waited on Mrs. Fisher at her home in Arlington, "but at least we have a government and country that cares for us and that worries about us. We have our mothers and fathers who haven't been taken from us by war or persecution."

From this beginning the Children's Crusade for Children has quickly developed into a national, humanitarian movement through the school-rooms ranging from the country schools to the large, metropolitan systems including New York City. Educators, authors, librarians, civic leaders and representatives of the great women's organizations and religious associations have endorsed the Crusade and are cooperating in its work.

Cooperating in the work of the Crusade are representative organization of young people such as the 4-H Clubs, the Boy Scouts, the Girl Scouts, the Girl Reserves of the YWCA, the Camp Fire Girls, the Hi-Y Clubs of the YMCA, as well as the leading farm youth groups.

School children who will contribute a penny for each of the years they have lived in this democratic land, or anything down to a cent, will have their money forwarded by their principal or teachers, to two country banks which are the national depositories of the Children's Crusade. For schools west of the Mississippi, the Citizens National Bank of Emporia, Kansas, and for schools east of the Mississippi, the County National Bank of Bennington, Vermont will receive the funds. All contributions will be voluntary.

The money raised will be apportioned among responsible, established agencies in every field of relief—Protestant, Roman Catholic, Jewish and non-sectarian—by an independent Jury of Award. Members of the Jury of Award are Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, William Allen White, Editor of the Emporia Gazette, Emporia, Kansas; Chief Judge Irving Lehman of the N. Y. Circuit Court of Appeals; Dr. Charles B. Glenn, Superintendent of Schools, Birmingham, Alabama, formerly President, American Association of School Administrators: Rt. Rev. Monsignor John A. Ryan, Director, National Catholic Welfare Conference; Caroline S. Woodruff of Castleton, Vermont, formerly President, National Education Association, and Dorothy Canfield Fisher, National Chairman of the Crusade.

More than one million collection cans have been contributed by the Can Manufacturers Institute and the producers of tin plates. Norman Rockwell has contributed the attractive poster for the Crusade. The Crusade officials announce that expenses of the Crusade campaign are being privately underwritten, thus making it possible for every cent collected from an American child to go directly to relief.

Believe It or Not

Thursday, April 18, 1940 rural carrier Robert Mason, got stuck in a snow bank and had to shovel his car out, while making his regular trip. Carlton Potter, school-bus driver got in a snow bank, but was able to back his bus out and drive around it. Another blizzard over the week-end piled the snow in the roads, so ten autos had to be shoveled out of a drift three feet deep on the state road near the Waight Corners, Monday, April 22. Supervisor Lester Cornell was able to get his car to and from his home with the aid of his team of horses. Levi Walrath and his school bus had to be hauled out of the snow banks near the Schenck place. Several others had to call for help to get out of the snow banks.

Deanna Durbin in "It's a Date" Starts Saturday at Fox

Heralded as Deanna Durbin's most colorful motion picture, "It's a Date", which has its background in Hawaii, will open Saturday at the Fox Theatre.

DEANNA DURBIN

Marking another important forward step in the development of the Universay star into more mature roles, Deanna's seventh film finds her surrounded by a stellar cast.

Sports—

There's another Billy Herman coming along to keep the name bright in the realm of Sportiana. The Chicago Cubs' second-baseman has a "Junior" who was picked as the bright star of the New Albany, Ind., Grade School League basketball season just closed. Billy, Jr., was high point-scorer. His team, the State Streeters, won the first semester championship.

The lessons learned on National League diamonds from Arbitrator Bill Klem and the other parent circuit umpires have proved valuable to Max Macon, Brooklyn southpaw pitcher. Out home last winter in New Albany, Ind., Max was rated No. 1 basketball referee. He called them right and when he was working, the referee was always the boss.

Probably the only young ball-player ever ordered to "whistle while you work" by his manager is Max West, long-range slugger of the Boston Bees. "Hustle" is the boss' usual order, but Casey Stengel noted that West was too tense at home plate when the pitchers were throwing his way. The wily Boston manager suggested whistling a tune as an antidote for hypertension. Result—Max hit at least one homer in every National League park last year.

Glen Stewart started life as a catcher, played every infield position for Jersey City last year, set a new International League pinch-hitting record of .500, and shapes up as about the most useful rookie in the ranks of the New York Giants. They call him "Gabby" because he can keep quiet longer around a conversation than any man on the Giants' playing roster.

If heredity counts, there's a great young ball-player coming along in the person of John Walter Cooney, Jr., 14-year old offspring of the Boston Bees' inspirational centerfielder and coach. Not only his father and his Uncle Jimmy were major leaguers, but both granddads were baseball men all the way.

Grampap Cooney was Jimmy Cooney of the Chicago Cubs in the '90's. Young Johnny's mother was born Alice Doherty, daughter of Michael F. Doherty, Albany infielder and manager of the club for 7 years, including 1907, when Albany won the pennant.

Diminutive Dominic Dallesandro the Chicago Cubs' first-prize power buy from the Pacific Coast League not only outbatted Dominic DiMaggio by 8 points in winning the league batting championship last year, but his average, .368, was the highest recorded in the sunset loop since 1935 Dally likewise led the league in drawing bases on balls.

Want to be a big league catcher son? Get a job hauling ice. That's how Harry Danning, the great catcher of the New York Giants, developed those back muscles that made him a power-hitter and according to his manager, Bill Terry, "the best low-ball catcher since Frank Snyder". At the age of 13, Harry got a job on an ice wagon and for several years after school hours his work consisted of tossing 50 pound lumps of frozen water into Los Angeles ice-boxes.

Ike Pearson, A. B. from the U of Mississippi, brought his brain with him when he joined the Phillies last summer. Summoned from the bull-pen for his National League debut, he found a Chicago Cub on first base and a slugger at bat. Quickly sizing up the situation, he turned and threw to first base, catching the base-runner napping for the third out, thus retiring the side without pitching to the batter.

Pamphlets Issued on School Meetings and Pupil Transportation

In preparation for the annual school meetings which take place this year at 7:30 o'clock on the evening of Tuesday, May 7, the State Education Department has published a revised edition of its law pamphlet on school meetings, quoting sections of the Education Law and outlining proceedings for such meetings. The pamphlet is being distributed to the district superintendents of schools.

The law provides that voters at these school meetings must be citizens, over 21 years old, who have lived in the district for 30 days, who own or rent real estate there or are parents of one or more children of school age or have a child or children living permanently in their homes.

At these annual meetings officers will be elected and budgets for the year beginning July 1, 1940, will be adopted. The law pamphlet points out that provision for the transportation of pupils must be authorized by vote at the school meetings.

With this in mind, the State Education Department has issued a separate pamphlet on transportation which has also been sent to district superintendents.

Generally, it states, a school district is required to provide sufficient transportation facilities for all pupils who are attending public or private schools of elementary or high school grade and who are in need of transportation because of the remoteness of the school that they legally attend. If it is claimed that sufficient transportation facilities are not being made available, an appeal lies to the Commissioner of Education.

After the transportation is authorized and an appropriation is made, it is then the duty and responsibility of the trustees and board of education, after consulting the district superintendent, to choose the contractor, determine the route and arrange all the details.

The pamphlet also discusses such matters as type of conveyance, driver, license, time schedules, insurance and state aid for transportation.

Steuben County Dairymen Breed Superior Animals

The recent purchase of the promising young Ayrshire bull, Green Hill Sunny Earl, by the cooperative bull association of which Lester Schwingle, Lawrence Parks and Harold Stanton of Atlanta and Cohocton are members, points to the progress that is being made in the improvement of Steuben's dairy herds.

The dam of this future herd sire is the winner of the famous French trophy, a national award of the Ayrshire Association, for a two-year-old record of 11,558 pounds of milk and 527 pounds of butterfat.

Of similar merit is the bull calf purchased by the Third Steuben Holstein Association of which Lewis Titus of Lindley, Jacob Warner and Paul Bros. of Caton are members. He is Ormsby Piebe Korndyke Colantha, whose dams in the first and second generations produced an average of 500 pounds of fat, and whose grand sire Royal Colantha Wayne, has the best rating of all the bulls proven in New York State.

List Other Bulls

High hopes are held for the junior herd sire of the Pioneer Holstein Association, Glenodale Lady Boy, a son of Cornell Ollie Lady Boy, whose first 21 daughters averaged 450 pounds of butterfat, and whose maternal grand dam has produced more than 100,000 pounds of milk. This group centers around Howard with Bert, Clair and George Bennett, S. H. Lyke & Sons, George Clymo, Kenneth Mattoon and I. J. Calkins as members.

The pedigree of Winterthur Pasch Ormsby Nepturne, rich with the best blood of the Holstein breed, gives promise of good results of his service in the herds of Kane Bros. and Robert Andrews of Addison.

Thirty dairymen who own 860 cows and heifers are enrolled in this breeding project which has for its purpose the betterment of the dairyherds. Each member has the use of several bulls for the cost of one, and cooperative ownership makes possible keeping the bulls until their daughters have come into milk, thus proving the transmitting ability of the sire. The program is sponsored by the Farm Bureau.

Our Gift Suggestion . . .

IN our 53 years—almost 54—of Creating Better Homes, it has been our lot to completely outfit hundreds of new homes conceived and built for prospective brides and grooms. In many cases the "newlyweds" have given us a blank order to equip it from top to bottom in our own manner of choice—materials, colors, etc. Naturally, they have set a "top" price for such furnishings, confident in our long-established ability to do the job correctly with quality furnishings, staying within the limits of their budget.

It is this confidence we strive our best to achieve. Too, we must use good judgment and a degree of artistry. Repeated demands make us feel that the task was well done—both efficiently and economically. You'll save at MacDowell's.

Dish For This Week

With spring in the air and fresh vegetables looking their best in the markets, a raw vegetable salad may be particularly tempting. The following recipe is suggested by food specialists of the New York State College of Home Economics:

Vitamin Vegetable Salad

Since vegetables, as well as appetites, vary in size, when preparing this salad each person will have to be his own judge of quantity. Some of the suggested vegetables may be omitted, but the combination of all, or most, of them is excellent.

Raw spinach, carrots, cucumber, cabbage, green pepper, tomatoes, beets, radishes, celery, cauliflower, lettuce, watercress, parsley, onion. French dressing.

Wash the small, tender, inside leaves of spinach until they are free of sand; peel the carrots, wash and shred the cabbage; scrub the cucumbers, green pepper, radishes, celery and several cauliflower buds with a vegetable brush; place all of the vegetables in ice or cold water for an hour, to become crisp.

Wash the lettuce, the watercress, and the parsley, place them in the icebox or a cool place to cool; just before serving time, place the lettuce and watercress in a large salad bowl; add the tomatoes, which have been peeled and sliced crosswise or wedge-shaped, and the beets, which have been peeled and grated.

Drain the chilled vegetables, dry them thoroughly between towels. Slice cucumber and radishes very thin; grate the carrots and divide the cauliflower buds in small pieces, and add them to the bowl, together with the shredded cabbage and spinach leaves.

Chop together the peeled onion, parsley, green pepper and celery, and combine them with the rest of the mixture in the bowl.

Suggested menu for lunch or supper: Cream of chicken or salmon soup, hot muffins or biscuits with jam, vitamin vegetable salad, baked apples and cookies, milk for the children, and tea, coffee or milk for adults.

Fruit, Flowers, Garden

Making New Lawns
D. J. Bushey

Home owners who want to start new lawns this spring should sow the seed early. Use good seed; cheap seed usually contains much chaff and weed seeds and should never be sown on well-prepared soil. Another thing to consider is that good seed sown on poor soil never makes a good lawn.

A three-to-four-inch layer of good top soil, such as a good garden loam or composted soil, is needed. Even a two-inch layer of topsoil may produce good results. If you cannot get new soil, the existing soil may be improved by forking in some organic matter, such as well-rotted manure or peat moss. Since manure may contain some weeds, peat moss is better.

Rake and roll the lawn before the seed is sown. To get an even distribution of seed, divide the total amount of seed in two equal parts and sow the first half in one direction and the second half at right angles to the first.

A recommendel lawn-seed mixture is given in the new Cornell bulletin E-429 "New Lawns", which also suggests seed mixtures for athletic fields. Single copies of this bulletin are free to New York State residents and may be had from the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y.

Health Officer Bean Advises Mothers-to-Be

Women who seek medical care before the sixth month of pregnancy are less likely to be among those who will suffer unhappy consequesces resulting from childbirth, Dr. Stuart H. Bean, health officer of the towns of Addison and Rathbone, said today in a special announcement to prospective mothers. He said that there is needless suffering and sometimes unnecessary death becase they fail to heed the warning that early and continuous medical attention is essential.

"Mothers and fathers look forward to the birth of a new baby, but just as nature is making her preparations, so must they do their part in aiding nature to achieve the fulfillment of their hopes", he said.

"Some mothers put off consulting the doctor for one reason or another. Some, because they have once gone through the experience safely, are willing to take chances, and drift along in a state of wishful thinking and a sense of false security. Others, because of financial pressure, mistakenly believe they are saving money, when, if things go wrong they are neither saving money nor themselves nor their babies. To insure the health of both mother and infant from the beginning of pregnancy until six weeks after the baby arrives competent advice and care are necessary.

"More women are going safely through childbirth every year. These improved results do not just happen; it means that the doctor, the mother and the father, too, are cooperating to safeguard pregnancy and childbirth.

"The young couple, who under the new law, have had their pre-marital examination, have had an opportunity to select their family physician, if they have not had one before. If the physician is called upon for periodic examination of the family as it comes along, it would not take long to convince them of the value of keeping well people well.

"While pregnancy is considered a normal function, there may be attitudes and conditions in mothers that should be the concern of the husbands. Insistance on early medical care, help in making arrangements for the delivery, sympathy, understanding, help with the heavy part of the housework, providing happy, healthful recreation, are some of the things the expectant father can do that every woman will appreciate and profit by".

FIRE DESTROYS HOME

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Snyder on Lindley Route 2, with most of its contents, was totally destroyed by fire Wednesday afternoon. Members of the family had been working in the dining room and when discovered the entire kitchen was a mass of flames.

The flames spread so rapidly that only a portion of the contents was saved.

Knights Drop Opener to Painted Post, 11 to 3

Painted Post defeated Addison 11 to 3 in a practice game held Tuesday afternoon on the Posters diamond. The game was only five innings with both coaches using a great deal of untried material. O'Connor pitched for Addison as Thomson was snowbound and could not get to school. The winners garnered 11 runs in 11 hits and the lsers managed three runs on two hits. Peterson pitching for the Post scored eight strikeouts for an early season record.

The Knights have had no infield practice owing to a muddy field and this is their first practice against fast ball pitching. Coach Miller was well satisfied with the appearance of his charges against Painted Post where there is more material and where the infielders have had more practice this season.

Sheriff Balcom Ready to Try Week-end Jailing

Steuben County Sheriff Benjamin Balcom has declared his willingness to cooperate with the spirit of the new law allowing prisoners to serve short terms intermittently. The law, effective April 20 provides justices may designate persons they sentence for 60 days or less can serve the term in days or part days where consecutive serving of sentence would deprive the prisoner of employment.

Mr. Balcom stated he thought the law would add materially to the work of the sheriff's office, but indicated he is willing to shoulder the extra responsibility. Chief Eckess agrees with the Sheriff that the law is confusing but worth a trial as it may work to the advantage of families of prisoners who might be saved from going on relief.

Free Toxoid Clinic Here In May

Health officer Dr. Stuart H. Bean has announced that toxoid clinics will be held in Addison and Rathbone during the coming months under the auspices of the New York State Health Department campaign for prevention of diseases.

These clinics will be for children from six months to 10 years of age. They will be held in the schools of Addison and Rathbone.

The State Department of Health has found that two inoculations for prevention are better than one and recommends the preventive treatments one month apart.

Acting on this Dr. Bean will conduct the first free clinic in the Addison High School Thursday, May 16 at 9 a. m. and in the Rathbone school on Tuesday, May 21. The second free preventive treatment will be given in the Addison school to the group on Thursday, June 13 and in Rathbone Tuesday June 18, both at 9 a. m.

Mothers unable to bring their children to the free clinics are asked to communicate with Health Officer Bean and transportation will be provided.
